A government owned car was used in Spartanburg County to demonstrate county library service in 1938. This service was discontinued when the car became unfit for further use. The county bookstock is still housed in the basement of the Kennedy Free Library. Residents of the county come to this unit to get deposits of books for their communities and schools. The bookstock is 2,513. There are 2,965 borrowers and the circulation for 1939 was 7,744.

Use of the Kennedy Library is free to the residents of the county. The Timrod Library, a community library serving the town of Woodruff is operated by W.P.A.
